RINGING IN THE SOUNDS OF HOPE AND HEALING

During her trips to London for specialized surgery, Daniella Czudner and her family noticed that there was a beautiful sound that filled the Cancer Centre every now and then. They discovered it was a gong, rung by people to mark milestones in their journey. They loved the sound and the feeling it brought to everyone around them, and so began a campaign to fundraise to bring one to Windsor Regional Hospital's Cancer Centre. On April 9th, friends, family, staff and patients gathered together for the emotional unveiling. "We are regular people, managing to go on living while cancer punches us in the gut," said Daniella's husband Tal. "We thought that this gong could be a small symbol of hope for families battling cancer."

"I have learned that every day needs to have a ticket, something we look forward to at the end of the day, a reason to work hard and keep moving forward", continued

Tal. "Well people fighting cancer have to keep fighting, keep moving forward. We hope that this gong gives people something to look forward to. Please ring this gong when you surpass personal milestones and come back every year and ring it. In fact, ring it whenever you want."

The gong is an ancient symbol of healing, and thought to invoke strength and good luck.
